

Gamertrainer.com, LLC Launches Service to Provide Private, Online Training Sessions to Console and PC Gamers of Any Skill Level

Gamertrainer.com, a portal dedicated to helping players learn gaming skills training, announced the launch of its website and service today. The website serves all levels of gamers from novices to professionals and promises tips, guides and hourly private lessons provided by skilled instructors.

Cleveland, OH, August 23, 2008 --(PR.com)-- Supports All Platforms Including Xbox 360™, PLAYSTATION®3, Nintendo Wii™ and PC's.

Gamertrainer.com, LLC, a leading provider of console and PC gaming skills training, announced the launch of its website and service, Gamertrainer.com™. The website serves all levels of gamers from novices to professionals and features tips, guides and hourly private lessons provided by highly skilled instructors or “Gamertrainers™.”

“Gaming is now one of the fastest growing forms of entertainment in the world,” said David Williams, co-founder and president of Gamertrainer.com, LLC. “You have all age groups playing and many adults are picking up controllers and playing online for the first time. As these new gamers enter the market a real skills gap can occur, causing frustration and driving them away,” said Williams. “Our trainers help fill that gap, whether your goal is to win more online in Halo® 3, get started in World of Warcraft® or to finally beat your neighbor in Guitar Hero® we have trainers available to help you.”

All training sessions take place over online services like Microsoft's Xbox LIVE®, Sony's PLAYSTATION®Network or PC based servers for games like World of Warcraft. Booking a training session is easy with an on-site calendar showing all the days and times available by game. Customers can book, purchase and complete a form describing exactly what they would like to learn and within hours they are contacted by their trainer and are ready to go. “One of our goals is to fill a very underserved niche - the beginner gamer,” said co-founder Bill Bates. “Take World of Warcraft, for example. For every World of Warcraft veteran there are thousands who have tried it and given up, unable to get past the myriad of choices, acronyms and terminology seasoned World of Warcraft players take for granted. Our World of Warcraft trainers help people get past the learning curve quickly and on to truly enjoying the game experience.”

Gamertrainer.com provides private training sessions and training gift certificates for both experienced and beginner gamers on all the major platforms (Xbox360, PlayStation 3, Nintendo Wii and PC) and a growing list of games including:

- Battlefield: Bad Company™
- Call of Duty 4®: Modern Combat™
- Guitar Hero® III and Rock Band™
- Halo® 2 and 3
- Madden NFL 09
- Rainbow Six® Vegas 1 and 2

- Super Smash Bros.® Brawl
- World of Warcraft

About Gamertrainer.com, LLC

At Gamertrainer.com our goal is to help anyone become a better gamer. It doesn't matter if you've just picked up your first controller or you're a frustrated gaming veteran, we have a trainer that can help you "Unleash Your Game." For more information visit www.gamertrainer.com

###

PR Contact:

David Williams, Gamertrainer.com, LLC (216) 396-8531 dwilliams@gamertrainer.com

Contact Information:

Gamertrainer.com, LLC

David Williams

216-396-8531

dwilliams@gamertrainer.com

www.gamertrainer.com

Online Version of Press Release:

You can read the online version of this press release at: <http://www.pr.com/press-release/101930>

News Image:

