

Cellhut Presents New Television Commercial

One of the internet's leading sellers of unlocked cell phones is airing its first commercial.

New York, NY, September 23, 2008 --(PR.com)-- Cellhut is proud to present its first televised commercial. In hopes that this new marketing direction will bring in a new customer base, Cellhut is looking to introduce unlocked cell phones into peoples' lives and let them enjoy the many benefits of the devices.

Cellhut has been an e-commerce website since 1996. Selling unlocked phones means that a company must stay ahead of the technological curve and offer phones that will last. Cellhut is always up to date on what phones the leading manufacturers are releasing. By offering their customers only the most reliable phones, Cellhut earns the trust of customers who return again and again.

This 30-second commercial filmed in New York City is just the start of Cellhut's new campaign to get people in the know concerning unlocked cell phones. These devices are not part of mainstream knowledge but Cellhut seeks to educate the general public about the freedom that these phones offer by creating a website that is easy to navigate.

Cellhut runs a website is cleanly laid out that allows the visitor to search by manufacturer, price, feature and a variety of other options. This allows the potential customer to easily search for the cellphone that they might want depending on a variety of features.
