

Hair Whisperers™ Rids Over 1000 Heads of Lice with the LouseBuster™ Device

Los Angeles, CA, December 01, 2010 --(PR.com)-- The Hair Whisperers, a Southern California head lice removal service, today announced that it has successfully treated head lice on over 1000 customers using the LouseBuster™ device. This revolutionary FDA-cleared device provides a chemical-free way to kill head lice and eggs using only controlled, heated air.

Since signing the exclusive Southern California distributor agreement with Larada Sciences, the makers of the LouseBuster™ device in May, Hair Whisperers has successfully incorporated the LouseBuster™ Treatment into their manual head lice removal service, using the device on over 1000 customers.

“After years of manual wet-combing to remove head lice, we found great success combining the LouseBuster™ Treatment with a closing comb through,” said Amy Goldreyer, Founder of Hair Whisperers. “For children and adults with severe cases of head lice, this treatment has saved us time and allows us to treat the customer in a single session, ultimately saving our customers money.”

Without the device, complete removal of head lice requires more than a single session, mainly due to the biology and reproductive cycle of the louse. Severe cases can require more than two sessions of combing. Hair Whisperers offers a financial advantage by cutting the time needed to treat each customer. Depending on severity, age and preference, each customer can choose which lice treatment option is best for them.

Goldreyer adds, “We are proud to have reached this milestone using the LouseBuster™ device. We have always promoted non-toxic options for lice remedies and this device is unique to any other treatment in the lice industry.”

About The Hair Whisperers - The Hair Whisperers was established in 2005 by Amy Goldreyer to help families get rid of lice in the comfort and privacy of their home. Their head lice treatment does not use chemicals and they do not sell any products claiming to eradicate lice. Instead, they use natural products to aid in the manual removal of lice and nits.
