

LowVARates.com Adds User Interaction and More Assistance via Live Chat

In an attempt to further its goal of bringing the dream of home ownership to veterans and active military across the Nation, LowVARates.com has taken great strides in improving its website so that gaining access to some of the most common questions regarding VA Loans and veteran eligibility is now right at its visitor's finger tips.

Salt Lake City, UT, April 28, 2007 --(PR.com)-- Veterans, Active Military and current VA loan holders, LowVARates.com has just added a Live Chat function to its website, allowing immediate access to its approved lenders nationwide. "Our live chat functionality has opened doors for home owners that have never before been opened. The other day our company was monitoring a chat between a prospective VA home owner and one of our approved loan officer in the state of Florida. We were impressed by how quickly the visitor was able to gain immediate answers to his questions and how quickly the loan officer was able to provide the future home owner with the appropriate VA Loan documents!" Eric Kandell, Owner LowVARates.com.

LowVARates.com has also added behind the scenes functionality that now makes it even faster at getting veterans approved for their loan needs. Its state of the art loan application distribution engine, instantly uploads the veteran's information to the appropriate lender approved to work in that veteran's state and city.

With the recent sub prime mortgage debacle, more and more eligible veteran home owners are looking to a VA loan for their way to live the American Dream of home ownership. In the past, there has been alternatives that allowed veterans to borrow 100% or buy a home with no money down. However, these alternative options are fading quickly into extinction. LowVARates.com provides those wanting to use their VA benefits with the tools and knowledge they need to make informed decisions about their loan options etc.
