

topseos.com Announces Increase in Prices from 1st August, 2007

Plymouth, IN, May 01, 2007 --(PR.com)-- "We have not just arbitrarily picked up a number; a lot of thinking has gone into deciding the actual percent of increase. The fact that the revised prices are implemented in August means that existing customers will not find the change abrupt."

Bill Peden said, during the announcement that topseos.com will be hiking its prices. The 20% increase in price would be applicable starting 1st August, 2007.

"The increase in price should really not come as a surprise because the factors behind it are not unknown to our customers. There is a rise in interest levels, a continuous need to reinvest for clients, and of course most importantly to meet increased standards of quality. After all, we do want to continue to provide more value to our customers; both existing ones and the potential customers." Bill Peden added.

The increase in price can be seen as a logical next step after topseos.com launched its new website. The re-branding exercise has seen the addition of many new features and sections of the website.

Since its beginnings in 2002, topseos.com has gone on to become a singular platform for leading firms to showcase their superior quality products and services. In addition to being a reliable source of information, topseos.com is also known for the many initiatives it introduces to attract new partners, and to reward existing ones. In keeping with its reputation, it can be safely assumed that an increase in price would translate into higher standards of quality.
