Clifton, NJ, May 03, 2007 --(PR.com)-- 2Ki, LLC inventor and manufacturer of the finest quality portable sifters available on the market today, announced the introduction of the Pro-Screen: a handsome, ergonomically designed wood frame that supports a corrosion resistant stainless steel wire screen. The Pro-Screen enhances the process of sifting soil and compost allowing the consummate gardener the ability to produce a fine rich mixture for their plants, flowers, and shrubs.

The Pro-Screen is available in three sizes: Small (MSRP $38.00), Medium (MSRP $60.00) and Large (MSRP $106.00 )

The Pro-Screen will make its debut next week, May 8-10, 2007, at the National Hardware Show and Lawn & Garden World at the Orange County Convention Center in Orlando, Fla. 2Ki will display its Pro-Screen sifters and related accessories at booth W136.

"Sifting, and sifting devices have been around for centuries. With the Pro-Screen we have created an entirely new ergonomic handle designed for comfort and built quality and value into the tool with our choice of materials," said Michael M. Miller, co-inventor. The Pro-Screen line offers three frame sizes to fit the task at hand. Optional accessories such as a bolt-on vibrator, portable stand, and various screen openings add to the Pro-Screen's versatility.
