

Don't Become a Victim

New Website provides the answers you need.

Boca Raton, FL, July 24, 2007 --(PR.com)-- Information Systems expert and author, Jay LaBonte has launched a new web site designed to provide expert advice on protecting yourself from such crimes a check fraud, identity theft, and even protecting your children from on-line predators.

With over 30 years experience in the field of Computer Information systems management, Jay LaBonte has extensive knowledge on protecting children from Internet Predators. This book "Parents Guide to the Internet" has been one of the most talked about books on Internet safety for children.

James A. Cox, Editor-in-Chief of the Midwest Book Review had this to say: "Parents Guide to the Internet is an absolute "must-read" for any parent in the internet-saturated twenty-first century; even technology savvy parents are likely to find valuable advice and warnings they hadn't considered before."

In addition to his experience in the technology field, Jay LaBonte has also worked extensively developing proprietary software systems designed to identify check fraud before a check based transaction takes place. In his book, "The Truth about Check Fraud" Mr. LaBonte exposes many details the banks would prefer you not know. His insights into how check fraud works affords Mr. LaBonte a unique perspective on helping everyone protect themselves from check fraud.

In addition to his new web site, Jay LaBonte is offering a Free Weekly e-Newsletter packed with helpful insights about check fraud and how to protect your self from it, as well and identity theft, and protecting children from on-line predators.

In past writings Mr. LaBonte, has explained how criminals can steal $1000.00 from your bank account with a deposit slip, or how a bill collector can legally wipe out your bank account with a bank draft.

Visit www.jaylabonte.com to sign up for his Free e-Newsletter Logical Thoughts, today and start learning what the criminals know, and what the banks don't want you to know.
