

Aguistic Advertising Set to Take Las Vegas by Storm

Aguistic Advertising Agency Las Vegas office now open

Las Vegas, NV, August 08, 2007 --(PR.com)-- Aguistic Advertising, a full service advertising agency, has opened its new office in Las Vegas.

“Aguistic Advertising has expanded its in-house capabilities in the last couple of years to provide complete strategic communications solutions to our expanding client-base,” said Chris Aguinaldo, CEO and Creative Director of the agency.

The main aim of the firm is to bring innovation, creativity and superior value to every client's assignment. Not surprisingly, Aguistic Advertising is fast creating a name for itself with its strong and reliable performance.

Xenia Fabres, Vice President, said although Aguistic Advertising was a fairly new entrant in marketing and advertising industry, it has already carved a niche for itself based on its superior performance. She further added that the proactive approach adopted by the firm has made a tangible difference to the firm's existing clientele.

There is no doubt that Las Vegas will be greatly benefited by the entry of Aguistic Advertising. There is a palpable vacuum in the advertising service industry, and the firm is looking to fill it up with its innovative and creative full-spectrum communications services.

Far from being a run-of-the-mill advertising agency, Aguistic Advertising excels in blending advertising and marketing. The firm combines traditional marketing and advertising techniques with new ones to significantly enhance their client's image and operate as an extension of their clients' marketing and communications arm, while understanding and anticipating their needs.

Although Aguistic Advertising opened its office recently, there is already a steady stream of clients approaching the firm to handle all their advertising and marketing needs. This is testimony of the impact the firm has already had on the Las Vegas advertising and marketing scene.
