

DVDVideoSoft, a Software Publisher, Launches Free Video Software Site

New York, NY, August 11, 2007 --(PR.com)-- DVDVideoSoft, an independent software vendor has launched <http://www.dvdvideosoft.com>, a new web site dedicated to free video software and to multimedia software guides and tutorials. Unlike software and shareware catalogs collecting 3rd party products, DVDVideoSoft carefully designs, develops and releases under its own name all free software titles available on the site to computer users absolutely for free without any hidden fees, subscriptions or registrations.

Today DVDVideoSoft at <http://www.dvdvideosoft.com/free-dvd-video-software.htm> offers 10 free and simple tools that let computer users do lots of video tricks. Download and save YouTube clips right to hard drive. Playback YouTube clips on portable players: iPod, iPhone, PSP or cell phone with Free YouTube to iPod and iPhone Converters. Or turn the flicks into MP3 songs or mobile phone ringtones with Free YouTube to MP3 Converter. Convert video between formats, prepare movies that can be played on PC or portable devices with Free 3GP Converter, Free Video to iPhone and iPod Converters. Turn videos into web-friendly Flash clips with Free Video to Flash Converter. Extract audio from video files with Free Video to MP3 Converter. Upload video clips to YouTube with Free YouTube Uploader bypassing their Web interface. Cut unwanted parts from MPEG videos without re-encoding and without sacrificing the original quality with Free Fast MPEG Cut.

DVDVideoSoft has targeted on one simple goal: make free and easy to use software with straightforward interface focused on very specific purposes so computer users can perform their particular tasks in video processing fast and easy. And this is just the beginning, in the coming months DVDVideoSoft will be releasing new software titles, for example: Free Video Rotate, Free Video to JPEG Converter. And the existing programs will support more video formats and devices.

All programs from DVDVideoSoft are absolutely free and run under all Windows, including Vista. The users' privacy is highly respected. There are not any spyware or adware. It is safe to install and run. The programs are available in different language, for example: English, German, French and Japanese.

Besides free downloads, the site provides many tutorials and guides. The choice of tutorials and the topics covered are great, so if computer users ever had questions on how to burn movies to DVD, delete scenes from video without re-recording or split a DVD into chapters, DVDVideoSoft is one fine resource they should definitely discover.

For more information and free downloads visit DVDVideoSoft at <http://www.dvdvideosoft.com>.

In addition to its software site, DVDVideoSoft runs Free On-Line Video Conversion resource VIDOKY (<http://www.vidoky.com>), one of the most popular video download sites on the Internet.

Contact information:

Alex Wang

support@dvdvideosoft.com.

<http://www.dvdvideosoft.com>

###

Contact Information:

DVDVideoSoft Limited

Alex Wang

pr@dvdvideosoft.com

<http://www.dvdvideosoft.com>

Online Version of Press Release:

You can read the online version of this press release at: <http://www.pr.com/press-release/48166>