

London Hotels Made Easy

London, United Kingdom, September 04, 2007 --(PR.com)-- With hundreds of hotels in London, how does a traveller find one in the right location and at the right price? TubeHotels.com shows the location of London accommodation relative to London tube stations on an interactive Google map. The website also compares prices from several leading hotel reservation websites to find cheap rooms.

Users choose from 275 tube stations to find and book over 800 London hotels, bed & breakfasts and apartments. All accommodation has a map, description, photos and distance to nearby tube stations to help visitors to London choose the ideal place to stay.

Location is important but it is not the only consideration when booking a hotel. Price is a major element of any reservation decision-making process. TubeHotels compares six London hotel reservation companies to give users the best available rates. Users can book online at the click of a button.

The site is equally useful to both tourists and business travellers. Tourists can pinpoint hotels near London's tourism attractions; and business people can find hotels near meeting and conference venues.

Founder Ben Jackson, said: "London can be a confusing city to visit. The London Underground network provides an ideal set of reference points to navigate the city and now to find accommodation in the right area. TubeHotels simplifies the city and hotel price comparison finds cheap London hotels."
