

Def Poetry Co-Founder Deborah Pointer Launches College Admissions Consulting Services

A Successful College Admissions Application is not a Secret. Def Poetry co-founder Deborah Battle Pointer has launched a college admissions/financial aid consulting service www.collegeadmissions-financialaid.com to demystify the college admissions and financial aid process for high school students and their parents.

Brooklyn, NY, September 26, 2007 --(PR.com)-- Def Poetry co-founder, Deborah Battle Pointer, has launched a college admission/financial aid consulting service www.collegeadmission-financialaid.com to demystify the college admissions and financial aid process for high school students and their families. “A successful college admissions application is not a secret. I have been blessed to have worked at some of the best public and private colleges and universities in America including Cornell and Columbia. The knowledge and expertise that I have gained over the years will make a significant difference in the application process of the students that we work with”, said Ms. Pointer.

“Many students do not have the knowledge or support they need when they begin the college admissions process, said Ms. Pointer. Our consulting service www.collegeadmissions-financialaid.com via e-mail and telephone is affordable for every family. The student and their family will decide how much support they will need from the beginning of the admissions cycle to the end. And, all students who participate in the program will receive free financial aid counseling.”
