

Discover How to Set Yourself Apart from Over 2 Million Agents

By becoming one of “America’s Best Real Estate Agents” through the America’s Best Real Estate Center, Realtors® nationwide are provided with superior marketing tools to set them apart from traditional real estate agents in a very competitive real estate market.

Naples, FL, October 08, 2007 --(PR.com)-- According to a survey taken by the California Association of Realtors in 2006, one out of every 4 homes is bought or sold over the Internet. The National Association of Realtors® said that more than 84% of home buyers and sellers go to the Internet to search for their home or their real estate agent. For real estate agents across America, the bell has tolled.

The National Association of Realtors reported that close to 80% of home buyers and sellers research the Internet before they ever call a Realtor.

Bill Gates said "If you are not on the Internet you are not in Business."

As more real estate is bought and sold on the Internet, more real estate agents need to have an online presence, but having a website is not enough. With close to 2 million Realtors® in America, it is important to be branded as one of America's Best Real Estate Agents. America's Best Real Estate Center can provide the marketing tools to help individual real estate agents stand out in the crowd, including building an easy-to-use, cost-effective, dynamic, and informative web site in less than an hour.

Ginny Lee, CRS, GRI, RECS, ABA, Realtor®, and Cyberspace Guru who is in the top 1% of real estate agents nationwide said, “I have consistently sold more than $10 million worth of Real Estate from Internet leads for the last three years. The Internet is the most cost-effective advertising that I have ever done. With over one million Realtors® in the National Association of Realtors®, you have to get an edge on the market to truly succeed.”
