

Dolly Parton's Imagination Library Free Benefit Concert is Grand Finale of 35th Annual Kingstree Pig Pickin' Festival

Thousands making their way to Kingstree, South Carolina for highly anticipated concert event of the year.

Kingstree, SC, October 15, 2007 --(PR.com)-- This Sunday, October 21, 2007 AT 7PM the wait will be over for those who have marked their calendar and plan to attend the 1st Annual Dolly Parton's Imagination Library Benefit Concert starring an exclusive video appearance by Dolly Parton, performances by Dolly's brother, Randy Parton, her niece Heidi Lou Parton, Kingstree's local celebrity and long time friend of the Parton family, Jacob Timmons, Randy Parton's band the Moonlight Bandits and an array of fantastic singers from all across the country.

Since S.D. Professionals, LLC and The Randy Parton Theatre announced that they will present the 1st Annual Dolly Parton's Imagination Library Benefit Concert in Timmons' hometown of Kingstree, South Carolina, as an effort to raise awareness throughout South Carolina for the non-profit's cause, providing children's books to participating community children every month until the age of five, tens of thousands of people have contacted the concert headquarters to voice their excitement and support and over 1 million viewers to date have visited from all around the world to watch exclusive video of Dolly Parton encouraging concert goers to attend the event and help support the program both on MySpace and YouTube as well as the official concert site www.jacobtimmons.com and the official festival website www.kingstreepigpickin.com.

The family, fun-filled event will extend this year's Kingstree Pi Pickin' Festival into Sunday, October 21st and will feature must-see performances from Jacob Timmons, Randy Parton, Heidi Lou Parton, Ryan Morris and The Moonlight Bandits incorporating a medley of pop, rock, jazz, country, bluegrass, gospel and patriotic music.

As the finale of the 35th Annual Kingstree Pig Pickin' Festival, the benefit concert will be held Sunday, October 21, 2007 at 7 P.M. at the Kingstree Recreation Park in Kingstree, South Carolina, compliments of S.D. Professionals, LLC and The Randy Parton Theatre. Although admission is completely free, donations will be accepted at the park entrance to help raise funds for the Imagination Library's early literacy program in Williamsburg County, South Carolina. Additionally, donations are accepted any time on the Imagination Library Web site, www.imaginationlibrary.com, where the proceeds go directly back to the contributing community.

“Join me in making my Imagination Library a reality for all children of South Carolina”...Dolly Parton

The benefit was made possible by the will and power of the show's creators and producers, Jacob Timmons and Randy Parton, brother of country music superstar Dolly Parton. Just for this one special night Parton brings together his entire cast, band and crew from The Randy Parton Theatre in Roanoke Rapids, North Carolina. For additional information about the event and the festival, visit www.kingstreepigpickin.com or call the town of Kingstree at 843-355-7484.

Currently, the Imagination Library works with local partners in 27 communities in South Carolina and a total of 600 communities in 43 states and Canada. The Imagination Library mails books to more than a quarter million children each month, and will provide approximately 4.5 million books in 2007.
