

REACT and towPartners Announce Membership Provisions for 2008

Cuyahoga Falls, OH, November 02, 2007 --(PR.com)-- REACT and towPartners today announced the continuation of their partnership bringing towPartners benefits to every agency owner in the repossession industry through their repoPartners offering. Thousands of asset recovery companies will receive their 2008 membership credentials in the next two weeks, courtesy of REACT. The asset recovery section of the Advisor magazine will also continue to be sponsored by REACT.

towPartners will provide these Basic Members a large number of cost savings benefits including quality programs from trusted brands such as Aramark, Sprint Nextel, Office Depot, Dell, Aircharge, T-Chek and more. With a current offering from well over thirty Supplier Partner companies and more being added regularly, towPartners is uniquely positioned to save the asset recovery industry more money than ever. In 2007, towPartners expects to save its members well over seven million dollars and REACT's provision of these memberships in 2008 promises to save the repossession industry millions of additional dollars.

“Our mission at REACT is to provide the professionals in the repossession industry access to a member services group that brings tangible value to their businesses. The repossession industry has never had a common thread throughout the thousands of companies nationwide; I feel this is just the start of many firsts for our industry,” stated Christopher Peer, President of REACT. “Many of our members have stated they are saving hundreds of dollars each month on basic operating expenses through repoPartners.”

Stamatis Ferarolis, Vice President of REACT stated, “The savings achieved with repoPartners benefits allows our members to cover their monthly membership in REACT and more, literally making membership in REACT free to any and all business owners. We could not think of a better message to send the repossession industry going into 2008.”

“REACT is working to build a stronger, more professional repossession industry and is focused on helping the companies in that industry to improve their business operations” stated Jeffrey Godwin, Vice President of towPartners. “REACT's continued commitment to the repossession industry is evidenced by their provision of these memberships. Our partnership with REACT promises to continue bringing benefits to the asset recovery community not previously available.”

Memberships for 2008 are being mailed this week and repossession companies who have not received their complimentary memberships within a couple of weeks can request one at www.repopartners.com.
