The Outer Limit Studios, an Orlando Web Design & Marketing company, pioneers the development of sales-driven websites with Virtual Spokespersons. This Orlando company just completed the construction of their new bluescreen studio enabling customers to shoot their virtual spokesperson videos on-site.

Orlando, FL, November 16, 2007 --(PR.com)-- The Outer Limit Studios, an Orlando Web Design and Internet Marketing company, pioneers the development of Virtual Spokespersons to make websites personal, entertaining & sales-driven. "Sales leads increase an average of 27% once a properly developed virtual sales person is introduced on a website." Stephan Boehringer stated. The internet is so competitive today, that any edge can make a dramatic difference. Thus The Outer Limit Studios would like to invite any interested person to visit the studio and shoot a 10sec sample clip absolutely free.

The Outer Limit Studios, located in Orlando, FL recognized the need for such a service about one year ago, and recently completed the construction of their own bluescreen video studio. The Outer Limit Studios is the only web development company in central Florida with such an in-house studio, enabling any customer to shoot their virtual experience right at the offices of The Outer Limit Studios without having to rely on outsourced services.

Stephan Boehringer and Neil Belliveau, managing partners of The Outer Limit Studios, have devoted their efforts to helping people achieve their website success since 1997, and now believe that use of informative and entertaining virtual spokespersons on a website represent the future of a more personalized internet. "A virtual spokesperson is much like a greeter at a large department store." stated Neil Belliveau. "In an age where the internet has become increasingly impersonal, a website with a personal touch is going to stand out and thus be much more likely to be successful."

The main services of this company include web development, database applications, internet marketing & video production. Build a website, produce a video and market online - all through one company that assures clean branding and cohesiveness. The production approach is simple:

1. Client goals are assessed
2. Strategies are implemented to achieve those goals
3. A specific timeframe is determined in which these goals need to be achieved, and finally...
4. All goals are tracked.

"If a goal can't be tracked, we simply throw it out - it's useless." Stephan Boehringer concluded.
