

New Website ModelLocator.com Launches as a Meeting Point for Models and Agents

ModelLocator.com is a new website where Female Models can submit their pictures (photos) to create a portfolio allowing them to be found by agents or people from the media.

London, United Kingdom, December 20, 2007 --(PR.com)-- It is the best time of the year to launch a website because the Christmas spirit lets us discover the wonders behind simple things. After some months of being under the radar, ModelLocator.com decided to open its doors to let models to submit their models pictures. The site is dedicated to female models.

James DeMarco, Marketing Consultant for ModelLocator.com said, "One of the best things of the site is that you can create a portfolio where models can include their pictures and details allowing them to reach more opportunities to improve their modeling career."

After years of developing websites, the head company behind ModelLocator.com decided to push their modeling sites because of the growing demand of people visiting their modeling websites and requesting sites like ModelLocator.com

When you visit the site you are going to be updated with the last news plus you are going to be able to see who are the last applicants. The site itself is very dynamic.

The next step is the release of their model's forum where experts from agencies, models, and the public in general will participate with questions, solutions and work opportunities.

The idea of a forum is not new, but the Internet is becoming more niche and people are requesting more specific subjects instead of the 90's model when people used to look for more generic answers for their questions.

The forum is going to be launched next year (2008) and is going to give free membership to their actual members and website visitors. There are plans to add a models VIP area that will give access to amazing opportunities for their members.

The site already has several members displaying their pictures and hoping to get a place in this competitive modeling world. For more information visit <http://www.ModelLocator.com>
