

Luxetile.com Announces RFB (Bid Request) Service for Contractors and Designers

Murfreesboro, TN, December 27, 2007 --(PR.com)-- Luxetile.com, "the" trade resource for stone and tile, announced today a Bid Response Service to help facilitate the bidding process for the trade by performing the research and providing the best possible pricing in the market. The RFB service, analogous to an RFP service, is free and available direct from the homepage. This offering is invaluable to contractors struggling with calling multiple manufacturers to complete a RFP/RFB on time.

Luxetile.com's RFP service is an essential part of supporting its trade base of contractors and designers. With national reach, Luxetile.com is able to identify the best resources for materials and specializes in identifying the many different name variations of stone materials. Luxetile.com is able to quickly provide volume container quotes and cut to size estimates.

LuxeTile is a wholesale distributor of stone and tile products. Working directly with distributors, fabricators and factories, LuxeTile is able to provide both a comprehensive and discriminating selection of the highest quality products for contractors, designers, and design/build firms.

The founders of LuxeTile have over 10 years of experience in natural stone products and 10 years in logistics. They have been guiding architect and design firms with stone selection for years and have experience with understanding the suitability of different stones for different applications.

They can help locate sources for unique, non-standard and limited distribution items. They will also assist with special orders and cut-to-size projects, however, minimum orders will apply.
