

Free Rider Web Hosting Introduces Protected Registration Service

Scottsdale, AZ, December 31, 2007 --(PR.com)-- Free Rider Web Hosting has launched a new service that allows customers to protect their domain names. Protected Registration, which costs $29.95 per domain per year, provides five layers of protection to ensure that the domain can not be transferred to someone else, and to provide useful information for people searching for information on the domain.

The first layer of protection is the Domain Ownership Protection. If the customer doesn't renew the domain, the domain is held for up to one year. During this time, the domain points to a parked page. If the customer wants to, they can renew their domain during the year.

The second layer of protection is the Deadbolt Transfer Protection. This makes it impossible for any inadvertent, accidental, or malicious transfers to take place. While regular domain locking occurs at the registry level, Deadbolt Transfer Protection locks the customer's domain in their account and provides a higher level of security.

The third level of protection is the Ownership Protection Reports. This service provides an annual domain status report and email updates to help the customer keep track of vital domain information.

Private Registration is the fourth level of protection provided. Private Registration allows the customer to register the domain through Domains by Proxy. Domains by Proxy's information is then displayed when somebody searches for information on the domain, meaning that the customer's information is kept private.

The fifth service that is provided is Business Registration. This service allows customers to display information such as their web site, phone number, hours of operation and other information when somebody searches for information about the domain. Business Registration is an effective advertising and marketing tool.

"The Protected Registration service is one of the most comprehensive tools we have seen for ensuring that a domain remains in the customer's ownership and provides useful information for people searching for details on the domain," said Simon Drain, CEO of Free Rider Web Hosting. "Protected Registration is sure to be an invaluable service for both new and existing customers."
