New York, NY, January 03, 2008 --(PR.com)-- Professional and amateur decorators and photographers had until December 31st, 2007 to submit their entries and were invited to submit as many entries as they liked so long as each entry was unique and original. Participation for this competition exceeded expectations and the results were many photographs that will be helpful to new parents decorating their baby's room for the first time.

Three winners were selected from the entries into www.Unique-Baby-Gear-Idea's Baby Nursery Theme and Decor Picture Contest. The winners all received gift certificates from Amazon.com. Votes and comments left on each entrant's personal webpage played a role in the final decision as well as originality and creativity of the each room's design.

First place was awarded to Crystal Yexley's Orange and Black Gender Neutral Design. She was suggested for first place with many positive comments from the site's visitors on her "dad friendly" nursery that made use of earth tones and glossy black painted furniture.

Mrs. Albanese was awarded second place with her lively modern nursery pictures. The modern room and creative geometric wall painting were favorites as well as her color scheme and nursery accessories.

Anything Seuss is a tried and true winner with kids and this proved to be true with voters in this competition. Shannon Lambert, the artist that entered the hand painted Dr. Seuss mural was awarded the prize for third place with her colorful nursery wall mural featuring various characters from Dr. Seuss' books. The baby who is lucky enough to have this delightful painting on the walls will be well acquainted with the fanciful story of Fox in Sox, Green Eggs and Ham and many other colorful creatures found in the Dr. Seuss books.
