

Pixel-Pod.com Offers New Twist for Online Advertisements

Pixel-Pod.com enables business owners to advertise their products/services to the online viewing audience. Pixel-Pod.com owner, Joseph Berry, believes the new concept will provide business owners with a new form of advertisement that will yield high click-through rates, exposing their products/services to a wide audience.

Norfolk, VA, January 31, 2008 --(PR.com)-- Pixel-Pod.com, owned by college student Joseph Berry, offers its customers a new twist to the online marketing concept. The site was set up with a goal to earn enough revenue to pay for Joseph's college tuition, while at the same time providing advertisement services for its customers.

Business owners are allowed to choose the size of their ad, the placement on the website, the image to represent their products/services, and the link to the corresponding website. Not only is the concept revolutionary, but it allows for the advertisement to be displayed on Pixel-Pad.com for a period of 5 yrs. During that time, the business owner is allowed to edit their image, and link as they please.

You can view the site by redirecting your browser to:

<http://www.Pixel-Pod.com>

###

Contact Information:

Pixel-Pod

Joseph Berry

252-562-4873

admin@pixel-pod.com

www.pixel-pod.com

Online Version of Press Release:

You can read the online version of this press release at: <http://www.pr.com/press-release/70259>