

First-Shred LLC, a Texas Shredding and Document Destruction Firm, Achieves Prestigious NAID AAA Certification

Dallas, TX, February 19, 2008 --(PR.com)-- First-Shred LLC, a Texas shredding and document destruction firm, has achieved the prestigious NAID AAA Certification for Mobile shredding. This is the highest industry standard for mobile shredding companies and involves meeting extremely stringent qualifications.

First-Shred is a Texas based shredding company that services the Dallas - Fort Worth metro area. First-Shred utilizes the most advanced shredding technology in the industry. A First-Shred mobile shredding truck can destroy up to 6,000 lbs. of documents per hour, which allows their clients to get the best security possible without being inconvenienced. First-Shred is locally owned and operated in Texas, with it's headquarters based in Carrollton. First-Shred currently services most major cities in the region, including Dallas, Ft. Worth, Carrollton, Plano, Arlington, Grand Prairie, Frisco, McKinney, Addison, Lewisville, and Coppell. First-Shred also recycles all the documents after they are shredded, so the service is not only secure, but also environmentally friendly.

NAID (National Association for Information Destruction) is the only widely accepted regulatory body in the document destruction industry. To gain NAID Certification, a document shredding company must go through a lengthy initial audit to prove it has met a set of stringent requirements. Once this is completed, to retain it's certification, the shredding company must continue to pass both annual audits and random audits to ensure they are maintaining their standards.
