

Military News Network Launches MilitaryProfiles.com

New social networking site for military people is now online.

Dallas, TX, April 23, 2008 --(PR.com)-- MilitaryNewsNetwork.com today announced the launch of MilitaryProfiles.com, a social networking site designed for military people. The free site offers an array of features for people connected to the military. Members can create a customized military profile, upload military-related photos and videos, create and participate in military groups and much more.

If you're in the military, or were at one time, you'll want to sign up and create a customized profile detailing your military background and experiences. You may also want to upload and share some of your favorite military photos and videos. And you may want to create your own blog and share what's on your mind.

But MilitaryProfiles.com isn't only for current or former military servicemembers. Military brats, ROTC, DoD civilian employees, military girlfriends and military spouses, those considering joining the military and all military supporters are welcome to join. Though primarily for those connected to the U.S. Military, MilitaryProfiles.com welcomes people from all over the world.

Businesses that offer military products and services are also welcome at MilitaryProfiles.com. Military-related businesses can create profiles, upload photos and videos and blog about their products or services.

To get started, go to MilitaryProfiles.com and sign up.

###

Contact Information:

MilitaryNewsNetwork.com

Tom Wakefield

469-360-9134

militarynetwork@gmail.com

www.militarynewsnetwork.com

Online Version of Press Release:

You can read the online version of this press release at: <http://www.pr.com/press-release/82109>

News Image:

