

HelloColleges.com Global College Networking Through Video Streaming

My Global Image LLC, a global social networking company who helps connect people across the world using advanced video technology, announces the launch of HelloColleges.com.

Severn, MD, July 01, 2008 --(PR.com)-- HelloColleges.com, was created as a way to connect students, faculty and staff of colleges around the world with an advanced video communication platform called helloWorld. Renata Ince, founder of HelloColleges.com, says, "Our focus is to get this technology in the hands of our future leaders of tomorrow. Young, creative, fresh minded individuals that can connect with one another around the world like never before. It's about letting the world see and hear from you. You have a voice and a face, use it. This technology is effective and empowering."

With this technology students are able to broadcast live to the world in their dorm rooms from their own computers, send video email, video conference, video instant message, video blog, and podcast. All media is stored and protected on the platforms servers. HelloColleges.com provides great examples on how to use the technology, and you get to see a video each month of the feature college of the month who uses the technology.

More importantly, My Global Image will be giving back 2% of gross sells to all colleges for student grants and environmentally friendly and "green" projects. Details available at HelloColleges.com. Renata says, "I am so motivated about being able to contribute to positive changes in the world. If everyone does a little, it will indeed make a big change. To be able to reach students in Europe, Asia, Africa, and the Caribbean Islands and have a positive impact on their lives thousands of miles away, that is a beautiful thing." You can visit www.HelloColleges.com to see how you and your school can acquire this technology and get involved with connecting globally through video communication.
