

singleLister.com Launches Free Single Property Web Sites and Agent Tools

Nashville, TN, July 12, 2008 --(PR.com)-- In the face of a rapidly declining real estate market, having the right marketing tools for a piece of real estate has become an absolute essential.

With that in mind, singleLister.com has launched a new, free single property web site service. singleLister's sites feature a photo slideshow, downloadable and printable flyers, easy access to contact information, map and directions pages and quick and easy contact forms. Users can also add pages to their web site to provide more information about their home's features, their neighborhood or other information that may be of use to potential buyers.

singleLister also announced sAgent Beta, a tool to help real estate agents create free single property web sites from their MLS listings. The service is currently available to real estate agents who participate in Middle Tennessee's RealTracs MLS service and is anticipated to expand to other MLS services after the beta trial.

Visit www.singleLister.com for more information about features, pricing and web site options.
