Athens, GA September 12, 2025 --(PR.com)-- Patricia Mann, Ph.D., a licensed professional counselor who does Christian mental health counseling online and holds a master's in mental health counseling and a PhD, has completed her new book, "In the Secret Place of Thunder": a stirring autobiography that explores how the author was brought back to her faith after encountering Christ in her life.

"'In the Secret Place of Thunder' tells the story of a woman who came from an atheist belief to know God," writes Mann. "After God got her attention with a miraculous deliverance from cigarettes, she had an awesome respect for God! In fact, she loved Jesus so much that she promised Him she would do anything for Him, and that set her on a path of serving God among the poor.

"As she boarded the airplane to Oklahoma, she found that her Bible college classmates were on the plane also. They were going to a class that Chuck Pierce was teaching at the school in Oklahoma. Before going, she was assigned to read a book at home that he had written. So she was reading this book, and it tells her to say these points out loud. As she got to the one that said God was bringing new supplies to her house, the Holy Spirit came down on her, and her cat went running around in circles with her hair standing straight up, and God brought Dwyane into my life!"
